Ensure adequate funding is available to effectively implement the Unified Marketing Plan program in top markets across the country. The WDPC commissioners have decided that it is in the best interest of Washington dairy producers to partner with these other organizations to create a unified marketing effort across the country given that approximately 60-70% of our state's milk is exported out of our state in some form. The Commissioners believe that this partnership is a preferable approach as opposed to duplicating these efforts with a separate effort.

Hop Growers of America represents U.S. hop producers, including those in Washington, with national and international organizations of hop growers, for the purpose of information exchange, statistics gathering, and trade education and communications. Each hop producing state supports a share of these activities with a portion of its commodity commission assessments on hops marketed in that state. This contract represents Washington's share of support for this program and is critical to maintaining the export level for hops (nearly 80% of hops are exported).

To insure compatibility of hop pesticide residue standards between the U.S. and customer countries that purchase Washington hops. Differing pesticide residue standards in the US and Europe, as well as other markets, create potential trade barriers for Washington hop exports. These services are critical because they directly relate to exporting/marketing hops, which is the mission of this agency.
