The Washington Scholarship Coalition is a public/private partnership that includes organizations committed to increasing access to scholarships and financial aid for Washington students. The Higher Education Coordinating Board is a member of the Coalition. In January 2010, the WSC launched theWashBoard.org, a free, web-based scholarship matching clearinghouse for Washington students. This Amendment is a result of directed budget cuts by the Governor. The State funds in this Contract are reduced in total by $300,000 in State FY's 2012 and 2013. DEL is adding $100,000 in Federal Child Care Development Fund (CCDF) Infant Toddler Targeted funds for State Fiscal Year 2012 to offset some of the impacts of the state funds reduction. Remaining funds will be distributed across remaining monthly payments and semi-annual reports for continued work on an essential portion of Reach Out and Read which is an evidence-based program that helps children be ready for success in school by partnering with doctors to prescribe books and encourage families to read together.

One of the responsibilities of the Washington Dairy Products Commission (WDPC) is to help Washington's dairy industry prepare itself to weather a major crisis that threatens the viability of the industry (for example, an outbreak of Foot-and-Mouth Disease (FMD)). In such an eventuality, a key strategy intended to preserve a state dairy industry by ensuring a market for dairy product sales would be to communicate truthful and reassuring messages concerning the crisis situation to consumers, news media and other key audience groups. Dairy farmers rely on veterinarians to provide medical care for their cows. Thus, veterinarians are normally the first to identify and confirm herd health issues. Therefore, to avoid confusion and panic in the event of a herd health crisis such as FMD, it is critical that veterinarians are able to clearly communicate to the public through the media. It is a matter of preserving the reputation of dairy locally, nationally and internationally, and thus, preserving its markets. The dairy industry at both the state and national levels intends to use veterinarians as spokespersons in a major crisis situation. These individuals need to be extensively trained both in the issues that are likely to confront the dairy industry during a crisis and in methodologies for effectively communicating key messages relevant to those issues. The contract will enable the WDPC to utilize the expertise of a service provider to perform these training assignments.
