COMMENTS:

1. All identified staff well. All have significant experience in scope and size. 2. All have relevant experience. All have understaken projects of similar scope and size. SWL seems to have more larger projects indicating ability to handle complex projects better. 3. Only SWL indicated they have used and will use these OFM methodologies. While KMB has extensive WA State project history they did not indicate their use of OFM's LCCT. SERA indicates they use a similar tool to OFMS's LCCT. 4. SWL and SERA more fully indicated LEED achievements than did KMB. 5. All describe past performance but again, I see SWL doing a more indepth description of Past Performance and highlighting specific National Guard regulatory references and experiences than SERA or KMB. The other competitor (KMB) did not reference National Guard Bureau (NGB) regulations or planning guidance. To me it shows a greater level of project intent and scope and owner/customer requirements.
