The purpose of this amendment for utilization review services is to update the unit pricing; the maximum compensation for the contract is not being changed. Although both parties anticipated renegotiations to be effective January 1, 2012, an increase in unit price is necessary because the department underestimated the volume of imaging claims and the transition for providers to request web-based reviews has been much more time intensive for the contractor. Qualis Health has and will incur additional costs to provide an on-site liaison for advanced imaging review for enhanced internal and external customer service and provider outreach. In addition, Qualis will implement and maintain the Group A, gold card provider list that was piloted by the department. This list will identify providers that will have reduced UR requirements and will include an audit process for providers on the list. Qualis will do provider notifications and education regarding the Group A, gold card lists. The contract changes are critical to the provision of enhanced web-based capabilities for the radiology and imaging review process required by 2005 legislation, ESHB 2105. The implementation of the Group A list creates efficient preauthorization processes and reduces our costs for providers who would not require full clinical reviews.

The 2009 Washington State Department of Transportation Ferries Division (WSF) Long-Range Plan proposed a vehicle reservation system as the primary strategy to manage demand, spread peak vehicle traffic, and improve asset utilization, thus reducing customer wait times and minimizing the need for costly terminal and vessel expansion projects. Given the costs associated with such a system, the Legislature directed WSF to complete a predesign study to support a request for funding for the final design and implementation.

In January 2010, WSF submitted its predesign study to the Legislature for review. The report presented alternatives and proposed a system that would benefit commercial traffic for all routes in the system, though general vehicle reservations would be limited to these routes where terminal facilities could support full implementation of the preferred system rules. The study also recommended a series of investments in regional communications improvements design to work with reservations to provide WSF with a coordinated set of demand management tools.

The Legislature approved the project and released funding for Phase 1 implementation during the 2009-11 biennium, and is expected to approve Phase 2 in the 2011-13 legislative session. This agreement will have an execution date of July 1, 2011.

To promote the use of Washington-produced soft white wheat by testing blends with red spring wheat to make products (bread) for Latin America, Middle East and Southeast Asia markets that traditionally use higher priced red wheat as a sole source ingredient and to investigate the use of containers to market Washington produced wheat into Asian markets. These are non-traditional approaches that can lower costs for millers/bakers and enhance marketing opportunities, while increasing the sale of Washington produced soft white wheat. Not all work could be completed in the initial year for the container project. It is thus being rolled into the current year.
