Stakeholder information gathering from five sectors revealed a long and potentially powerful list of actions that the Family Policy Council could consider as a means for engaging the sectors in the work of preventing ACEs and mitigating their effects. The list is too long for the Family Policy Council members to consider implementing all at once. The purpose of this amendment is to increase the impact of having the sector information by creating tools that will support the Council in making informed choices about its strategic action agenda, and to provide tools that will be effective in communicating to private funders the opportunity that exists in Washington at this time.
